Let's get started!

As I said today, we will look at some words added to the dictionary in the last decade. These are trendy words, and I'm sure most of them sound familiar to you.

Let's start with the first word:

1. Jeggings

The word was introduced into the dictionary in 2015.

Jeggings are a blend of jeans and leggings. When they first came out, I was fascinated by these pants. They are the most comfortable thing ever in my opinion, and yet they look so much like jeans.

2. YouTuber

The term was introduced into the dictionary in 2016.

YouTube appeared in 2005 and since then, millions of people have been uploading videos on the platform on a regular basis.

I started creating weekly videos in 2012, but it wasn't until 2016 that the word was added to the dictionary.

According to the Oxford Dictionary, a YouTuber is a person who uploads, produces, or appears in videos on YouTube.

3. LOL

The word was introduced into the dictionary in 2011.

Though this word is still popular, we have actually been using it for many years.

So, what's LOL? It's an abbreviation of laughing out loud or laugh out loud.

The word abbreviation means a shortened form of a word or phrase.

4. Facebook

The term was introduced into the dictionary in 2018.

Did you know that we have used Facebook so many times that the verb to facebook has emerged?

So "to facebook" means to spend time using the social media website or app Facebook.

5. Skype

The word was introduced into the dictionary in 2014.

Before other apps like Zoom or FaceTime existed, Skype was the most popular app on the Internet for video calls.

According to the Oxford Dictionary, to skype means to have a spoken conversation with (someone) over the Internet using Skype, typically also viewing by webcam.

6. Webinar

The word was introduced into the dictionary in 2008.

Basically, a webinar is a seminar conducted over the Internet.

One of the most popular platforms is GoToWebinar or Zoom Video Webinars.

7. Podcast

The word was introduced to the dictionary in 2008.

Now this word should be very familiar to you. I say this because you are listening to a podcast episode every week.

The term podcast originates from the fusion of the words iPod and broadcast.

According to the Oxford Dictionary, a podcast is a digital audio available on the Internet for download to a computer or mobile device, whose new episodes can be automatically received by subscribers.

The last word for today is:

8. SMS

This word was introduced to the dictionary in 2009.

Back before we had Internet on cell phones, we used to send many SMS text messages. But nowadays, most people use WhatsApp, Telegram, Messages, etc.

So, SMS is a short message service that enables mobile phone users to send and receive text messages.

Ok, that's it for today; in the next episode, I will continue talking about the most popular English words added to the dictionary in the last decade.
