

SpeakEnglishPodcast.com

The Podcast That Will Help You Speak English Fluently.
With No Grammar and No Textbooks!

Episode #260

Homophones in English: Words that Sound the Same, But Mean
Different Things

Get more lessons at: SpeakEnglishPodcast.com

Welcome back to another exciting episode of the Speak English Now podcast!
I'm Georgiana, your English teacher, and my mission is to help you speak English fluently.

And if you want to help me, share the podcast. That would mean a lot. Thanks.

In today's lesson, we're going to explore the fascinating world of homophones. These are words that sound the same but have different meanings, and sometimes can be tricky for English learners.

Don't worry, though! By the end of this episode, you'll have a solid understanding of homophones and be able to use them confidently in your everyday conversations.

Before you start listening, make sure to get the transcript on my website: SpeakEnglishPodcast.com
It's free!

So, let's dive in!

Homophones are words that are pronounced the same but have different meanings and may be spelled differently. They can often cause confusion, as they sound identical, but their meanings can vary. Let's explore some common examples of homophones to help clarify their usage.

Example 1: "Two," "Too," and "To"

Although they sound exactly alike, they have different meanings and uses.

"Two" refers to the number 2, such as "I have two cats."

Get more lessons at: SpeakEnglishPodcast.com

"Too" means also or in addition, for example, "I want to go too."

"To" is a preposition used to express direction, purpose, or recipient, as in "I'm going to the park."

Example 2: "There," "Their," "They're"

Let's break them down:

"There" is used to indicate a location or a point being discussed, like "The keys are over there."

"Their" is a possessive pronoun that shows ownership, such as "They brought their books."

"They're" is a contraction of "they are," as in "They're going to the movies."

Example 3: "Write" and "Right"

Our final example focuses on two words that sound identical but have distinct meanings:

"Write" means to put words on paper or create text, like "Please write your name."

"Right" can refer to correctness, direction, or the opposite of left, such as

"The answer is right" or "Turn right at the intersection."

Homophones can be quite challenging, but with practice, you'll become comfortable distinguishing their meanings and using them correctly. Remember, it's important to pay attention to context and understand the specific definitions of each homophone to avoid confusion.

Get more lessons at: SpeakEnglishPodcast.com

By expanding your knowledge of homophones, you'll enhance your English skills and improve your ability to communicate effectively.

Great! That's all for now! I hope you found this topic helpful.

Let's continue with a Point of View Lesson.

POV-Story

(Learn grammar in context)

I will tell you the same story twice. So make sure to focus on the changes.

You can find these techniques fully implemented in my premium courses.

SpeakEnglishPodcast.com/courses

Okay! Let's start!

Once, there were TWO friends named Tim and Sue. They lived in a small town BY the sea and loved adventure TOO. One sunny day, they decided TO go on a trip TO the neighboring village.

Tim went TO the market TO BUY some snacks for their journey. He bought TWO bags of chips, TWO bottles of water, and TWO sandwiches. Sue, on the other hand, was responsible for packing their bags. She packed everything neatly and included a map TO guide them.

Get more lessons at: SpeakEnglishPodcast.com

They set off on their bicycles, excited about the trip. The road was long, and they had each other for company. As they pedaled, they sang their favorite songs together.

After a while, they reached a crossroads. Confused, they looked at each other. Tim took out the map TO find the right direction. "We need TO turn left TO reach the village," he said.

As they continued on their journey, the weather started TO change. Dark clouds gathered in the sky, and the wind picked up. Thunder rumbled, and rain started TO pour. Tim and Sue had TO find shelter quickly.

They spotted a small cafe BY the road and decided TO take a break there. Inside, they ordered TWO cups of hot chocolate, to warm themselves up. They sat BY the window, sipping their drinks, and waved BYE BYE TO the rain.

After a while, the rain stopped, and they resumed their journey. The village was just a few miles away. Tim and Sue reached their destination and explored the quaint streets, admiring the local shops and friendly people.

As the day ended, they realized it was time TO return home. They cycled back, tired but content. The trip was filled with laughter, surprises, and new experiences.

When they arrived back in their town, they said BYE BYE TO each other, promising TO plan another adventure soon. Tim and Sue knew that their friendship was a treasure worth more than anything money could BUY.

Let's listen to the same story in the present tense:

Hi! I'm Tim, and I have a friend named Sue. The TWO of us live in a small town BY the sea, and we love adventure TOO. Today, we decide TO go on a trip TO the neighboring village.

I go to the market to BUY some snacks for our journey. I purchase TWO bags of chips, TWO bottles of water, and TWO sandwiches. Sue, on the other hand, is responsible for packing our bags. She packs everything neatly and includes a map TO guide us.

We set off on our bicycles, excited about the trip. The road is long, but we have each other for company. As we pedal, we sing our favorite songs together.

After a while, we reach a crossroad. Confused, we look at each other. I take out the map TO find the right direction. "We need TO turn left to reach the village," I say.

As we continue on our journey, the weather starts TO change. Dark clouds gather in the sky, and the wind picks up. Thunder rumbles, and rain starts to pour. Sue and I have TO find shelter quickly.

We spot a small cafe by the road and decide TO take a break there. Inside, we order TWO cups of hot chocolate to warm ourselves up. We sit by the window, sipping our drinks, and wave BYE BYE to the rain.

After a while, the rain stops, and we resume our journey. The village is just a few miles away. Sue and I reach our destination and explore the quaint streets, admiring the local shops and friendly people.

As the day ends, we realize it's time TO return home. We cycle back, tired but content. The trip is filled with laughter, surprises, and new experiences.

When we return TO our town, we say BYE BYE TO each other, promising TO plan another adventure soon. Sue and I know our friendship is a treasure worth more than anything money can BUY.

Okay! That's the end of this short exercise. Notice that the changes between grammar points are subtle but important.

It's better to see the changes in the proper context. And with a story, it is much easier to remember all this.

Visit SpeakEnglishPodcast.com/courses, to get my premium courses. They are designed for learning by listening.

Okay! We have reached the end of this episode. See you soon! Bye! Bye!

Georgiana

founder of SpeakEnglishPodcast.com

Get more lessons at: SpeakEnglishPodcast.com